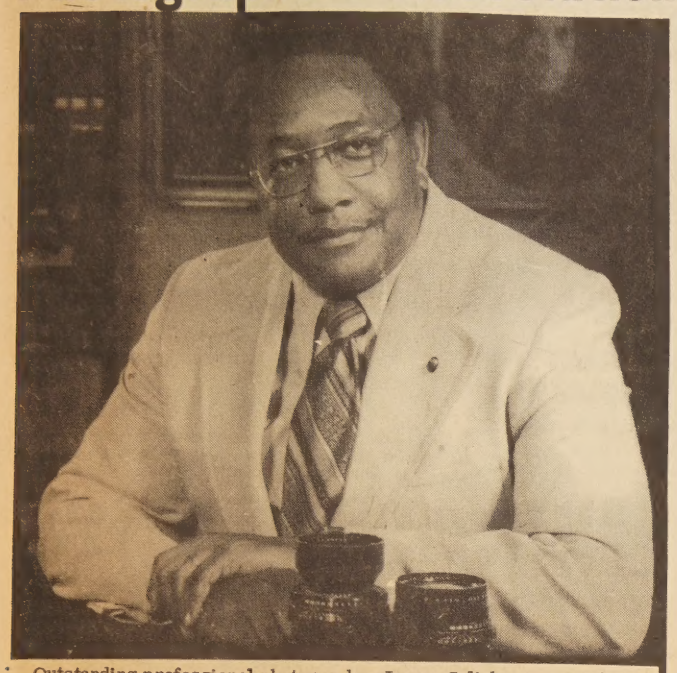
James Salisbury Installed as Vice President of Seattle Professional Photographers Association



Outstanding professional photographer James Salisbury was inducted as Vice President of the Seattle Professional Photographers Association last Thursday in ceremonies at the Tail of the Whale (formerly the Windjammer South) in Des Moines, Washington. The 150-member organization is comprised of professional photographers, studio owners and managers from King, Pierce and Snohomish counties. The installation ceremonies were the highlight of an evening which included a banquet and exhibition of photographic work contributed by members of the organization.

The much-honored Salisbury most recently received recognition in his field when one of his portraits was chosen for exhibition in the prestigious Professional Photographers of America Bicentennial Loan Collection in the 85th International Exhibition of Professional Photographers in Washington, D.C.

On February 26 Salisbury and his work will be featured on KOMO-TV's "Action: Inner-City". The program will air on Channel 4 at 1:00.

As Vice President of the Professional Photographers Association, Salisbury's duties will include the Program Chairmanship for the upcoming year. Salisbury said that he plans on obtaining the best professional photographers from the Western United States to come and speak to the group.

Salisbury is a graduate and former assistant instructor from the famed Brooks Institute in Santa Barbara, California, where he majored in Professional Portraiture.

Coast Guard Reservists Update Pollution Control Plan

SEATTLE -- Coast Guard Reservists living in the Puget Sound area have just completed a major, year-long effort to revise and expand the Coast Guard's oil pollution contingency plan for Western Washington waters.

The updated plan provides the Coast Guard Captain of the Port of Seattle, with a wealth of information helpful in controlling a pollution incident. Detailed in the plan are such things as shoreline access, beach composition, locations of boat launching areas, potential helicopter landing sites, equipment and facilities of potential use in cleaning up or controlling a spill, and the names of locally-available experts in marine and environmental matters.

More than fifty Coast Guard Reservists worked on a part-time basis this past year to gather the necessary data, surveying in-person some 18 hundred miles of Washington State shoreline. The information they compiled was then transferred to detailed maps made from aerial photographs. The area covered by their survey is bounded on the south by the Tacoma Narrows Bridge, on the north by the Canadian border, and on the west by Cape Flattery. There are plans to survey Hood Canal, south Puget Sound, and Washington's Pacific Coast during 1977. In addition, the existing survey information will be updated as changes occur.

Many of the Coast Guard Reservists worked 12 to 16-hour days at times in order to gather the required information, and more than thirty of them received letters of commendation from the Commandant of the Coast Guard in recognition of their accomplishment. The letters were transmitted by Rear Admiral Chester A. Richmond, Jr., Commander of the Thirteenth Coast Guard District. Participating in the survey were personnel from Coast Guard Reserve Units Seattle I, Seattle II, Tacoma and Everett, as well as the five-member Coast Guard Reserve Seattle Strike Team. Oil companies, local, state and federal government agencies, fish farm operators, and others cooperated with the Reservists in their survey.

The Coast Guard Reserve Seattle Strike Team, headed by Commander John Orewiler, USCGR, is on call and available to participate in the Coast Guard's response to a major oil spill. The Strike Team would be dispatched at the order of Captain Richard F. Malm, USCG, Coast Guard Captain of the Port, Seattle, and would work with regular Coast Guard personnel in efforts to control a major pollution incident. Two of the Strike Team's duties in such an emergency are to set up a command post for Captain Malm and to provide communications.

African-American Cultural Center to Offer Self-Defense Classes

Beginning on February 7th, 1977, the African-American Cultural Center will offer Self-Defense Classes which are open to the community. Women are urged to participate.

The areas of concentration will be as follows:

1. Physical Fitness
2. Mental Conditioning
3. Self-Defense

The instructors for the course, both of whom hold black belts, will be Messrs. Carey Lewis, an eight year practitioner, and Ed Lewis, a ten year practitioner. These men have previously instructed at McCarver School, Tacoma Community House, Ujaumma Center and PLU.

The classes will meet on Mondays and Thursdays from 6:30-8:00 P.M. Interested persons are encouraged to contact the center.

Icebreaker Polar Sea Being Put in Special Commission

SEATTLE, WA., Jan. 25 -- The second of the country's most powerful icebreakers -- POLAR SEA -- will be placed in "commission special" status in a brief ceremony at Pier 36, on Jan. 31.

In the scheduled 11 a.m. ceremony aboard the icebreaker, Rear Admiral Chester A. Richmond, commander, 13th Coast Guard District, will order the ship into service. The special commission status means that the ship will be in limited operation to prepare both vessel and crew for unrestricted duty.

The Coast Guard accepted delivery of the ship from Lockheed Shipyard on Jan. 19. Since that time the 140 man crew has been busy loading equipment and supplies. During the month of February the POLAR SEA will spend time underway for training.

In March, the icebreaker will enter the Lockheed Shipyard where its three propellers will be removed and sent to Allis Chalmers Corp. of York, Pa. to have the hub components strengthened for icebreaking. By fall the modified propellers should be ready. A shakedown cruise and full formal commissioning ceremonies will follow.

The POLAR STAR, sister ship to the POLAR SEA, was placed in full commission in January 1976. However, during icebreaking duty off Alaska, the ship's propellers failed under stress. As a result of studies made by Coast Guard engineers the propeller hubs for the POLAR STAR and the POLAR SEA are being modified and strengthened.

The improved propellers will be placed on the POLAR STAR this summer. Following extensive open water and ice testing the ship will go on Antarctic operations.

CAPABILITIES

The "polar class" ships are the first icebreakers of their kind to be constructed in the U.S. since the Long Beach, Calif.-based icebreaker GLACIER was built in 1954. The 310-foot long GLACIER can ram through fourteen and one half feet of ice. Comparably, the 399-foot long POLAR SEA and POLAR STAR will crack through 21 feet of ice.

The new ships are the only icebreakers in the world of their class to have controllable pitch propellers. The ability to control the angle at which the propeller blades cut through the water eliminates the need for reversing the direction of the propeller shafts. This feature shortens the time and distance needed to stop the vessel.

Because the 16 feet in diameter propellers do not have to be stopped in order to back up the ship during ice ramming, the possibility of ice floes floating up between the hull and propellers is diminished. Thus, minimizing the likelihood of damage occurring to the blades. The continuous turning of the blades keeps the ice churned up like a blender at work.

Should the ship become lodged in the ice a "heeling system" is used to break up the ice around it. This system transfers 400 tons of water every 50 seconds between the tanks on each side of the hull. The sloshing action gives the icebreaker a five degree rolling list. In the older icebreakers the heeling system shifts 250 tons of waters each 90 seconds.

Other features include: a computerized control center to monitor engine room machinery; computers for satellite navigation and processing oceanographic data; two propulsion systems: diesel-electric and gas turbine; hanger space for two helicopters; five scientific research laboratories; accommodations for ten scientists; and a hull design to enable the ship to cruise continuously through six feet of ice at three knots.

Icebreaker duty can mean periods of up to seven months away from home. For crew comfort and morale there are staterooms not to exceed four men to a room; four lounges; a library; exercise room; and soda fountain. The living areas are done in bright colors and modern decor.

The POLAR SEA and the POLAR STAR will be excellent ships for military and scientific research; and in support of marine transportation and economic development studies of the polar regions.

Tacoma Sickle Cell Office Moved

Olympia -- The Tacoma office of the state Sickle Cell Anemia Program has moved to a new location.

The new address for the program is 2502 Tacoma Avenue South. It is in the same building that houses the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation and certain other Department of Social and Health Service offices.

BLACK POETRY

My Black Man

I love you with all my heart.
It is an extreme pleasure to have a part of you in my womb.
I want so bad to be your Black queen your Woman,
your only Woman.
Black Man please don't leave me alone.
Stay and help to educate our beautiful Black Children.
I am so glad you came back.
I missed and needed you so.
I missed the tenderness of your lips—
the gentleness of your love carressing my heart.
Black Man, My Black Man
I Love You.

Lawanna Lee Replaced on TCC Board

Lawanna Lee has been replaced as a trustee at Tacoma Community College. Mrs. Lee was originally appointed by former Governor Dan Evans and served 1½ years on the T.C.C. Board. Ms. Lee's appointment was never confirmed by the Senate.

Ms. Lee, who is the Deputy Director of the Tacoma Urban League feels that the board is becoming politicized. The feeling now is that minority representation will be something to be desired.

Notice

Members of the Black Forum of Tacoma are concerned about the Governor overlooking Black citizens of Tacoma for top level positions for the State and also the removal of key Black citizens from College trustee boards. Governor, we played a part in making you Governor of our state, too!

A Message From the Sentinal NAACP Credit Union

The Sentinel-NAACP Credit Union Board of Directors made plans in May of 1975 to establish a Branch office in the Tacoma area. We selected the location of our Branch office next door to Glenn's Furniture.

In December 1976, we selected a new location for our Branch office: 624 South "K" Street, Sutie-B. Phone 572-3102.

We would like to solicit your assistance, or in other words a helping hand, to pass information around to your friends, relatives, associates, organizations and church members of the Tacoma area.

Our present membership consists of persons who are members of the National Association For the Advancement of Colored People, The Prince Hall Masonic Family of Washington and various churches within the Seattle and Tacoma area.

You, yes you, are invited to join and share in the benefits of the Sentinel-NAACP Credit Union. If you are a member of the NAACP, Prince Hall Masonic Family of Washington or a church in the Seattle or Tacoma area the cost is 25¢ plus two shares of $5.00 each, which starts your savings account) for a total of only $10.25. If you do not belong to one of the three organizations listed above the cost would be 25¢ interest/entry fee, $4.00 donation to one of the sponsors and the two shares of $5.00 each (which starts your savings account) for a total cost of only $14.25.

We are supervised, regulated and examined by government authorities. In addition, as added protection, officers, director and employees are bonded.

Insurance is provided for each loan to protect the member in case of disability or death, in the event of either the loan is paid off. All deposit accounts are insured to a maximum of $40,000.00. Live Savings Insurance is provided on each savings account. Each dollar saved earns a dollar's worth of insurance, up to $2,000.00. Example: $1,500.00 earns $1,500.00 worth of insurance. (at no extra cost to you) this cost is paid for by the Credit Union.

If you would like more information, please give us a call or come by the office. We will be glad to assist you in any way we can.

We are serving you, not for profit, or charity, but for service.

Ob-Gyn Translations Aid Korean Wives

LETTER PERFECT -- Mrs. Chang Yun translates OB-GYN forms and information booklets into the Korean language for use by Korean dependents who cannot read English. The translated booklets now in use help Korean natives understand the medical care they receive at Madigan Army Medical Center.

The anxiety of having babies in a foreign land has been lessened for Korean wives thanks to the efforts of a former Korean nurse.

Mrs. Chang Yun, the wife of an assistant professor in the University of Puget Sound language department in Tacoma, translated obstetrics and gynecology (OB-GYN) care and information booklets into the Korean language for use at Madigan Army Medical Center, Tacoma, Wash.

Using only the English versions, Mrs. Yun translated several prenatel and post partum information booklets for Madigan patients. In less than two weeks, Mrs. Yun submitted all the translations "publication ready" to the Center.

As a mother of a five-month old son, Mrs. Yun realized only too well the need for information dealing with pregnancies written in Korean.

Commenting on Korean military wives who cannot read English, Mrs. Yun said, "Many have a problem with understanding during a pregnancy and after the birth. These booklets give them the information and help them better understand just what is going on."

The initial idea for translating information came about because of difficulties Madigan's Community Health Nursing staff was having in communicating with Korean dependents. Lieutenant Colonel Mary DeWarn, chief of the community health nursing, said, "We weren't sure if they were comprehending the information we gave then during their pregnancy and on how to care for themselves and their child after delivery."

After deciding to have the books translated, a search was made to find someone willing to do the job. Lt. Col. DeWan talked to Mrs. Sue Stibbe, an Army Community Service (ACS) volunteer and head of the ACS Interpreter Committee and Special Projects Committee, who contacted the University of Puget Sound language department and was introduced to Mrs. Yun's husband.

Mrs. Yun, a graduate of the EWHA Women's University in Seoul, Korea and a registered nurse, has lived in Tacoma only four months.

"I had heard a lot about America and I found out I was qualified as a nurse in the States so I decided to come and see it and stay for awhile. I hadn't planned to stay too long, but I met my husband and changed my plans," she said with a smile.

Before coming to Tacoma the Yuns lived in California for 3½ years where she worked as a surgical nurse and he taught at the University of California at San Diego. Asked about her impressions of the Puget Sound Area she said, "It is certainly different from California and I miss the sun -- but the mountains are beautiful." She is presently looking forward to working in the nursing profession.

Lt. Col. DeWan said the translations used so far have had positive response. "Those patients who read and understand Korean have said the information is very good and the translations accurate. We haven't had time yet to discover how totally effective the translations will be but they are definitely an asset."

Better Health Today by Dr. Andrew H. Isaacs

TRY WALKING FOR YOUR HEALTH...

Thirty years ago the average child walked to school. Today he is extremely unhappy and often refuses to go to school unless he either has his own automobile or is driven both ways.

If you have had the opportunity to visit a for foreign country, one difference strikes you. Our high standard of living and our automated age seem to have made the United States' population a riding and viewing one, rather than a participating one.

For our health's sake, we must go back to a way of life in which moderate exercise is a part, thereby allowing organs of our body to function properly.

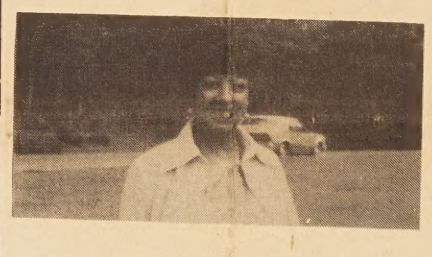
Review your family's living habits. If your family eats too much, sits too much, rides too much, and exercises too little, this might be a good time to turn around and go back to some of the wholesome activities that were popular 30 to 40 years ago.

Your doctor reminds you that there have been great advancements made in the health services to help you live longer and more satisfying life, but real progress can only be made if you have the desire to maintain your health.

It is often an act of wisdom to seek qualified professional counsel as early as possible from a doctor of chiropractic. Under chiropractic care, a patient is either treated or referred after a comprehensive diagnosis.

Remember this truth: "IT IS NOT TRUE TO SAY THAT EVERYTHING POSSIBLE HAS BEEN DONE UNTIL MODERN SCIENTIFIC CHIROPRACTIC HAS BEEN TRIED."

Peggy Cannon Appointed Assistant Administrator at Eastside Hospital



Mrs. Peggy Cannon has been appointed Assistant Administrator for Patient Services at the new Eastside Hospital in Redmond, Wa. Eastside Hospital will be the second hospital soon to open for services under Group Health Cooperative. In her position Mrs. Cannon will administer the Departments of Nursing, Surgery, Respiratory Therapy, Central Services and Emergency.

Mrs. Cannon and her husband, Joseph recently relocated to the Seattle area from N.Y.C. when the U.S. Postal Service selected Mr. Cannon to assist in supervising the opening of the Seattle Bulk Mail Facility. Mr. and Mrs. Cannon reside in Federal Way.

Mrs. Cannon, a registered nurse, earned her B.S. and M.S. at Columbia University NYC. Mrs. Cannon is active in professional and community activities. For the past 15 months Mrs. Cannon was Assistant Director of Nursing at Valley General Hospital, Renton, Wa.

EDWARD RUDOLPH JOHNSON

LIFE EPITOME

To everything there is a season, a time to be born and a time to die. (Ecclesiastes)

Edward Rudolph Johnson, 59, of 1413 East 25th Street was born Nov. 24, 1917 in Roanoke, Virginia to Charles and Hester Johnson, both of whom precede him in death. He departed this life early Sunday morning, January 23, 1977 at St. Joseph's Hospital in Tacoma, Washington.

He was Baptised into the Baptist faith at an early age. He was raised in Roanoke where he graduated from Harrison High. At the age of 24 he left home to join the Army where he served honorably for four years. When he was discharged at Ft. Lewis, Washington he decided to make Tacoma his home. He was employed by the Post Engineers at Ft. Lewis as a heavy equipment operator.

He was a creation of God who dearly loved God's other creations. He stood by his children after the death of their mother, giving them love and seeing to it that they were raised in the right manner; for his friends he had a ready smile and a handshake; his compassion included animals too, he owned 2 dogs and 12 cats.

He brightened many lives during his stay on earth including those of his five children: Mrs. Henry (Eddie-Belle) Jones of Ft. Worth, Tex.; Mrs. Roy (Jeanette) Harris, of York, Penn.; Ms. Beverly Grant and Ms. Gladys Grant and his son Rudy all of Tacoma, one sister, Mrs. Mitch (Gladys) O'Teal of Roanoke, 8 grandchildren and a host of other relatives and friends.

It broke our hearts to lose you,
The day God called you home.
Part of us went with you,
You did not go alone.

A million times we've longed for you,
A million times we've cried.
And if love could have saved you,
You never would have died.

Services were held 1 P.M. Saturday, January 29, 1977 at the New Covenant Pentacostal Tabernacle, Pastor Edna E. Travis officiating and were directed by the staff of the House of Scott Mortuary.

Statewide Coalition Calls For Repeal of Sales Tax on Food

A statewide coalition calling for the repeal of the sales tax on food was announced today in Olympia. Composed of low income groups, senior citizen organizations, churches, consumer groups and professional nutritionists, the group is calling for the end to this state's most regressive tax, the sales tax on groceries. The state currently taxes food at 4.6%. Local governments add varying percentages, bringing the sales tax as high as 5.4%.

The Coalition Opposing the Sales Tax on Food, COSTOF, was formed because "the needs of low income people are too often ignored by the state Legislature," said Linsey Hinand, the Director of the Metropolitan Development Council in Tacoma and chairperson of COSTOF. "The goal is to make the repeal of the sales tax on food not only a priority in the Legislature this year, but also a reality in the supermarkets next year."

"There is a myth that no one in Washington pays a personal state income tax," continued Mr. Hinand. "The 350,000 people living below the poverty level in this state are paying an effective 2% flat rate income tax when they pay the sales tax on food."

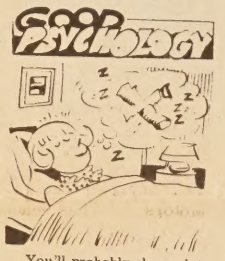
"The sales tax on food is the most regressive and unfair tax we have to pay in Washington," said Hinand. "It forces lower and middle income people to pay a higher percentage of their income for taxes than upper income people pay."

"Every time food prices rise people living on fixed incomes, such as senior citizens on Social Security, pay a double burden. If tomatoes go from their present price of 79¢ per lb. to 89¢ per lb., the sales tax increases 1¢ on that item alone. When lower income people get to the cash register the money simply runs out. The sales tax on food must be repealed," emphasized Hinand.

J.B. McCrummen, Director of the Hunger Action Center, a COSTOF member organization, stated that "Lower and middle income families will benefit considerably from the removal of the sales tax on food. A family of four will save between $142 to $174 per year--that's two to three weeks of groceries."

McCrummen continued, "We applaud those state legislators working to overhaul the nation's most regressive state tax system. The tax burden must be placed on those most able to pay, not on those people who already have difficulty sustaining a minimum standard of living."

Interested groups of individuals can contact COSTOF at the offices of the Hunger Action Center located in Seattle, Spokane, or Olympia.



You'll probably sleep a lot better, some psychologists say, if you furnish your bedroom in soothing colors. Traditional blues and greens are still used, but earth tones, such as rust and brown, may prove just as relaxing.

You'll probably sleep a lot better, experienced travelers say, when you stay at a place such as a Holiday Inn. There you can rely upon getting an American standard of excellence in the furnishings, including relaxing earth tones in many bedrooms.

Cleaver 'testifies' as an Evangelical

Eldridge Cleaver, the Black Panther Party's former minister of information who lived in exile for seven years after fleeing the United States to avoid a trail, "testified" at an evangelical rally recently that although he had earlier in life rejected his mother's Christian teachings, he and his wife had been recently baptized and were no "companions in the Lord."

He told the audience at a Word of Life Fellowship rally that since he turned to Christianity, old friends had forsaken him.

"When I began to talk to my old friends about the way that things were looking to me," he said, "I began to lose them, at first one by one, and then by the dozens, and then, just in droves."

His wife, Kathleen, he said, "had been with me though thick and thin, and as things were thinning out I was really worred that Kathleen was going to decide just like a lot of other people had said, "Man, you're goin crazy, I'm going to get out of here."

But he said he was happy to report that on Oct. 10 he and his wife had been baptized at Arrowhead Springs in southern California and that "just as we have been together through all kinds of storms, we are now companions in the Lord, and I think that's a blessing."

Cleaver, now about 41 years old, is free on $100,000 bail. He fled the United States while awaiting trial on charges of assault and attempted that resulted from a 1968 shootout between Oakland police officers and members of the Black Panther party, from which Cleaver has since been expelled.

Cleaver was introduced by Jack Wyrtzen, founder and co-director of the Word of Life, at the rally, which took place at the Felt Forum. Wyrtzen called Cleaver a "prodigal son," both of whose grandfathers were Baptist preachers, but who "became a black militant."

Cleaver was applauded several times during his interview on stage with Wyrtzen. Later, Wyrtzen said that Cleaver was not paid by the Word of Life Bible Institute, but that Cleaver had received some financial help from a "Christian businessman from Pennsylvania."

The Word of Life is a nondenominational Protestant missionary organizaton. It has camps and Bible institutes in several foreign countries. It has its headquarters in Schroon Lake, N.Y.

Asked by Wyrtzen about his children, Cleaver said that his seven-year-old son, who was born in Algeria, and his six-year-old daughter, who was born in North Korea, both attend a Christian school in Los Angeles.

"They put me to shame when I go and talk to them and ask them what they learned in school," Cleaver said. "They're not learning mathematics by counting apples and bottles and things like that. They're counting angels, crosses and churches and things like that. They're learning everything from a biblical point of view. I'm going to do everything I can to make sure they don't go astray."

He said that last Christmas he was in jail in California and that this would be his first Christmas in the United States with his children.

HEW guidelines for 'disabled' children

HEW's Office of Education has proposed regulations which would more clearly identify children who might have specific learning disabilities.

The proposed regulations establish diagnostic procedures for appropriate diagnosis of children with specific learning disabilities. However, experts in the field do not agree on any single approach.

Under the Education for All Handicapped Children Act, allocation of funds to states is based on the number of handicapped children receiving special education and related services. In counting children, Congress has stated that states may not count more than 12 percent of all children 5 through 17 as handicapped, and children with specific learning disabilities may not constitute more than one sixth of this number.

Although this "cap" will be removed once final regulations are in effect, it was set up on the theory that using proper evaluation procedures would eliminate the danger that children would be mislabled.

Interested persons are encouraged to comment, not only on the specific requirements of the proposed regulations, but also on the value of this approach to determining the existence of specific learning disabilities.

The Office of Education will hold five public hearings with places and times to be announced.

Written comments should be sent to the Bureau of Education for the Handicapped, Office of Education, Room 2015, Regional Office Building No 3, 7th and D Streets, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20202.

Pearl Bailey To Be Spokesperson For Greyhound Lines

NEW YORK -- Jan. 12 -- Pearl Bailey, America's First Lady of Song, debuted today as Greyhound Lines' spokesperson for 1977.

"Pearlie Mae," as she is affectionately known by millions, was introduced to the press and travel industry at a reception held in her honor by James L. Kerrigan, chief executive officer of Greyhound Lines, Inc.

"Pearl Bailey is an extraordinary lady whose talent, vivacity and charm are legend," said Kerrigan. "Her power as an entertainer, her personal appeal and forthright manner make Ms. Bailey an impressive spokesperson. We are proud to be associated with her, especially since Ms. Bailey only becomes associated with companies she believes in."

According to Kerrigan, Pearl Bailey's first network television commercials for Greyhound will appear the week of January 16. She will emphasize the low cost of travel by Greyhound, particularly three new money-savers -- a $50, one-way ticket to anywhere in the U.S. served by Greyhound; a $33, 3-day round-trip interstate excursion and a $99, 9-day unlimited travel Ameripass. All three plans have the bonus of allowing one child under 12 to travel free for each adult fare purchased.

Greyhound's commercials for 1977 are visually impressive, musically pleasing and liberally spiced with Pearl Bailey's inimitable asides and one-liners. The overall theme, "Say Hello to a Good Buy," tells it like it is, that bus travel is the most economical way to travel.

"For too long, the public has been deluged with a bewildering array of fares and facts from all travel modes trying to obscure the fact that bus travel is inexpensive," said Kerrigan. "And, I include the bus industry in that indictment. We are trying to make travel easier and cheaper for someone who has been hard-hit by inflation or is out of work and can't afford to travel. A $50 bus ticket from coast-to-coast that allows you to take a child along free will mean plenty to a lot of people."

Added Pearlie Mae Bailey, "Honey, these people know what they're doin'!"

The United Negro College Fund's 1976 Campaign in the State of Washington has been brought to a successful close with gifts totaling $57,785 -- a 10.5% increase over 1975's previous high of $52,279. The announcement of the Campaign results was made Friday, January 28, 1977 by Oscar D. Johnson, Washington's Campaign General Chairman, and Dr. Hugh M. Gloster, President of Morehouse College, Atlanta, Georgia, in a news conference held at the University of Washington's Administration Building.

Dr. Gloster was in Seattle to deliver lectures at the University on the Development of Black Higher Education in America and to make several appearances on behalf of the United Negro College Fund. His school, Morehouse College, is one of six United Negro College Fund schools located in Atlanta. Washington Campaign Chairman Johnson attended Morehouse at one time.

Johnson stated that the encouraging aspect of the UNCF efforts in Washington during the past two years has been a gradual increase in the number of corporate contributions. He added that the corporate campaign will receive top attention in 1977.

Two major special events that proved successful and were important in helping raise the total income in Washington in 1976 for UNCF were a Black Bicentennial Ball and a Radiothon. Don Dudley and Veltry Johnson of Radio Station KYAC were instrumental in organizing the Radiothon that generated over $3,000 of new gift money--largely from individuals from Seattle's Black Community.

Nationally, UNCF totals are expected to top $13 million when the final announcement is made within the next few weeks. National campaign leadership for 1977 will have A. Dean Swift, President of Sears Roebuck serving as Campaign Chairman, and John R. Opel, President of IBM again serving as National Corporations Committee Chairman. Swift replaces Thomas A. Murphy, Chairman of the Board at General Motors, who has headed up the last three UNCF Campaigns.

The United Negro College Fund is the national fund raising arm of 41 historically Black Colleges located in the Southeastern part of the United States. These 41 schools are all private institutions of higher education, all are fully accredited, degree granting schools. Many of the schools date back to the middle and late 1800's and were founded by church leaders to provide some avenue of education for blacks who were then denied educational privileges and benefits. The United Negro College Fund campaigns in most of the major cities of the United States and reaches all communities with direct mail appeals. The Fund was founded in 1944.

New Idea Helps Prevent Battery Failure

If you've ever had to drive to a remote place, the chances are when you shut off your car's engine there was a nagging question in the back of your head:

"Will it start again?"

Thanks to an innovation in automobile batteries, you can now almost forget about starting failure caused by your battery running dry or being choked off by corrosion. A new maintenance-free battery, developed by Gould Inc., greatly reduces these risks. It is easily recognized because there are no filler caps and you don't have to add water. In addition, corrosion is virtually eliminated.

INNOVATIVE IDEA—A battery that lasts as long as your car.

This new battery not only maximizes starting power, but it retains its stored energy six to eight times longer than conventional batteries. But its best feature is that it gives you, the car owner, greater peace of mind.

In an age when everything seems to be made with built-in obsolescence, it is reassuring to know that there is a product you can rely on... again and again and again.

Operation of West Coast Loran-C Stations Delayed

Mariners will have to wait a little longer before the West Coast chain of new Loran-C stations begin sending out radio impulses to aid navigation. Construction delays and time needed to fully test electronic equipment have prevented the January 1, 1977 operation date from being met.

Commander Richard C. Walton, chief, Aids to Navigation Branch, 13th Coast Guard District, Seattle, Wa., said, "The new Loran-C stations are in different stages of completion and all of them will have begun on-air testing by early 1977."

In November, the Loran-C unit at George, Wa. became the first of the new West Coast sites to be commissioned and has already begun transmission checks.

The tentative schedule now calls for the U.S. West Coast Loran-C chain (California) to begin operation in April 1977; the Canadian West Coast chain in May 1977 (Oregon, Washington, Canada); and the Gulf of Alaska chain in June 1977.

Loran-C navigation charts will be available by January for mariners who would like to use the new chains as soon as they are declared operational.

Further Loran-C details are available by writing: Commander (oan), 13th Coast Guard District, 915 Second Avenue, Seattle, Wa. 98174, or telephoning (206) 442-5864.

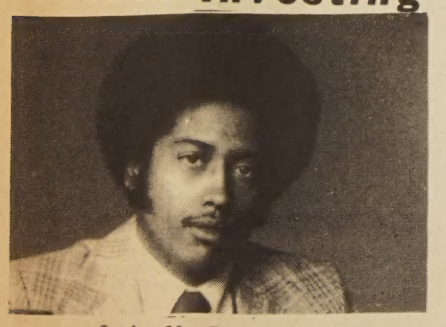
Special Classes Offered on Real Estate Investing



Luis M. Rivera

TAXES, inflation, cost of living, tax shelters, investing, are all words that cross our minds at this time of the year. How much in taxes are you paying for 1976? Have you looked into what investing will do to soften the 1977 tax bite? Are you aware of the effects of the 1976 tax laws and their impact?

Many people will respond to these questions, "Well, I don't know about what I can do, I just don't have the basic knowledge it takes to determine what road to take." A class covering the fundamentals and the alternatives of Real Estate Investing is being offered. The class will enable the participants to come away with a basic understanding of how to do something about that tax bite in '77, today.

This class will be taught at Mt. Zion Baptist Church on 19th and East Madison on Thursday evening from February 17th to March 31st, 7:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. Advance registration until February 10th, call 322-4744. Class will be limited to 40 people.

Luis M. Rivera's prior experience has been in the field of engineering. He has taught the pre-licensing course for Seattle-King County Board of Realtors and is involved full-time in investment brokerage and consulting. He has developed office space in the Mansa Professional Building. He has been active in a number of efforts to develop and improve the community. As a board member of the Mann-Minor Madrona Housing Rehabilitation Program, he is helping direct the investment of 4.5 million dollars to develop and improve housing in the Central Area. He is also a candidate for designation as a Certified Commercial Investment Member of the National Association of Real Estate Brokers. Through his firm, Professional Managers & Investors - Realtors, he is available to assist investors with real estate related situations including investment counseling, real estate, and business opportunities brokerage.

CONSERVING ENERGY

Tips From Whirlpool Home Economists

Although major kitchen and laundry appliances account for only a small portion of the nation's energy consumption, it's still important to lower energy use wherever possible. Here are some ways to help your refrigerator/freezer perform more efficiently:

- Reduce refrigerator/freezer door openings; remove as many needed items at one door opening as possible. Keep food organized to eliminate searching.
- Frost more than 1/4" thick reduces efficiency--so defrost when necessary.
- If your's is a no-frost refrigerator-freezer, check to see if it has a power-saving heater control switch. If so, check your operating instructions to determine if it's at the correct setting.

Spotlight on two Coast Guard Men

Commander John T. Howell
Executive Officer, POLAR SEA

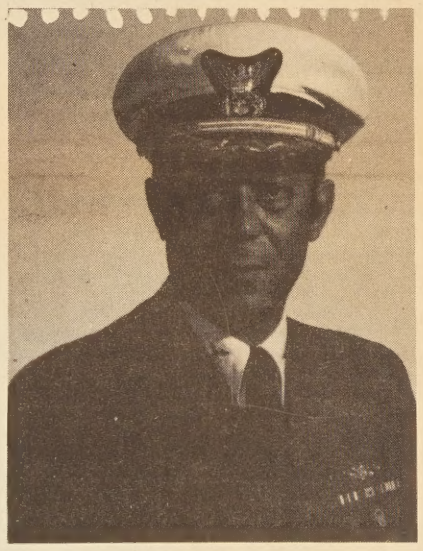
What better place for a man with extensive schooling and background in naval engineering than to serve as second-in-command of one of the country's two most powerful icebreakers?

Commander Howell is a 1959 graduate of the Coast Guard Academy with a bachelor of science degree in engineering and has a masters degree in naval engineering from the University of Michigan. He has served as naval engineering assistant branch chief, 13th Coast Guard District headquarters in Seattle; he has been assistant professor in the engineering department at the Coast Guard Academy; and was the shipbuilding branch chief at headquarters in Washington, D.C. before reporting to the POLAR SEA.

Icebreaking duty is no stranger to Howell. He served in engineering capacities on the icebreakers NORTHWIND and STATEN ISLAND.

With Seattle being the homeport of the POLAR SEA, Howell will be working from the Pacific Northwest in which he was raised. Born on Oct. 22, 1936, he is the son of Mrs. Byron A. Howell of Colville, Wash.

A 1954 graduate of Colville High School, he is married to the former Janet L. Keeley of Colville. The Howells have two children: Douglas and Sheri.



Captain Richard P. Cueroni
Commanding Officer USCGC
POLAR SEA

Captain Cueroni brings with him to the POLAR SEA the enthusiasm and vigor that one would expect of the commanding officer of an icebreaker that will be circumventing the world and exploring vast polar regions, where few, if any civiliz ation has been before.

His enthusiasm for the challenge of command is evident from the fact that the POLAR SEA is the fourth new cutter that he has put into service and served on as its commanding officer.

A 1953 graduate of the Coast Guard Academy, his vigor can be traced back to this school days when he played baseball for four years and football for three. He also played on the academy's first undefeated football team. In 1959, he returned to the academy as an instructor and assistant football coach.

Adventure is no stranger to Cueroni. While serving with the Coast Guard liaison office in Haiti during the early 1960s unstable political conditions forced the immediate evacuation of his family to the United States. Shortly afterwards, the military mission in the country was terminated.

From 1971 to 1975 Cueroni served at Coast Guard Headquarters in Washington, D.C. as assistant chief of the Intelligence and Law Enforcement branch; then later as special assistant to the Commandant. The latter earned him the Coast Guard Commendation Medal.

Cueroni is a distinguished graduate of the Industrial College of Armed Forces and a graduate of the Armed Forces Staff College.

Born in Framingham, Mass. on Feb. 1, 1930, he is married to the former Elizabeth Hilborn of West Hartford, Conn. The Cueroni's have five children.

Notice

The Society of Military Widows will hold their meeting on Feb. 4th, 12:00 noon at the Episcopal Church, 205 East 96th. A demonstration of liquid embrodery will follow the business meeting.

Black Businessmen Can Help Themselves Economically

PART I OF A SERIES

It would be unfair to say that Whites can help without staring that Blacks can help themselves in business. It has been said that Blacks should "pull themselves up by the bootstraps." But the truth is that many Blacks don't have the straps, or even the boots in the first place. How does one do the impossible?

It is foolish to think that Blacks can develop by themselves with little change and direct involvement by this society and the white establishment. White establishments must supply the boots and straps. Therefore the Black businessman must prepare for whatever comes his way. He can only be ready if him house is put in order. It is time now that black businessmen forget the misfortunes of the past and concentrate on the fortunes of the future. The following should be considered by all black businessmen:

1. Make a sound analysis before investing capital in a business. Many aspects of a business venture must be considered - location, competition, consumer affairs and traffic, rental space rates, utility requirements, equipment and merchandise requirements, return on investments, etc.

2. Seek every possibility to secure capital and credit from banks, other lending institutions, and SBA. Do not fret over past experiences with banks and SBA. You should not feel that applying is a "waste of time." White banks are gradually giving commitments to the aiding of black businessmen. There should be an effort made to secure funds from these sources; the money is there. Try them. Force them if necessary. SBA is a good source, although the loan program may not be the best. The money is there. However, when applying it is important to have books and records in order and the purpose of the loan clearly presented. Here are some of the things SBA and other lending institutions are interested in:

a. How much money do you need?
b. What will the money be used for?
c. Will the institution be repaid?
d. When will the money be repaid?
e. Does your business have the potential to make more money?
f. What kind of collateral can you offer?
g. What is the capability of management?

Many black businessmen make the mistake when applying for loans of not being prepared to answer the lending officer's questions decisively. Some ask for too little and others ask for too much. When asked for "how much do you need?" the reply is often "how much can I get?" You should know your needs and not the lending officer. When the lending officer sees that you don't know your needs he becomes skeptical.

3. Do not borrow uneconomical money. In other words, don't borrow illegal money, "easy loans", etc.

4. Seek advice and counsel from non-profit non-governmental agencies which are set up to aid black businesses. Nearly all large cities now have some form of counseling program for minority businessmen.

5. Seek advice of government institutions on business management and on how to do business with government agencies. The General Services Administration, one of the largest contracting agencies, publishes several pamphlets about its services and needs.

6. Keep accurate books and records. Books and records are of prime importance to the black businessmen. Every business should keep accurate books and records for obvious reasons. First, you cannot know what your business has done in the past or what its future potential is without review and analysis of business operations. Secondly, in order to avoid overpayment of taxes, accurate records must be kept. Obtain access to a trained accountant.

7. Report all income, but pay only those taxes that you are legally required to pay.

CONTINUED NEXT WEEK.

Changing of the Guard

By Jerry Carter

Watching the changing of the guard in the state. Being black I feel my vote did not help in getting or keeping confident black administrators in top state positions. Although it seems to me that the governor is overly nice to her friends, I guess I should be overjoyed because she has two black friends. But to cast stones at the governor can not help.

We black citizens of the state could have but did not put our "eggs in one basket" in order to buy, at least, pride with our votes. Even-though the percentage of black voters in our state is very small, it would be much higher if all the black citizens would become voters. When black citizens do not vote we can not look or hope to see our confident black administrators in high level posts in state or city government.

"Roots" tells me that slavery is still with us, only now it is economics but slavery nonthe less. Unless we can come to grips with each other the bonds of this type of slavery will be much harder to break. So I say to all of you who are 18 years and older, register and vote to free us black people from this economic slavery.

NAACP Image Awards Set For April 24

HOLLYWOOD, JAN. 26 -- THE BEVERLY HILLS -- Hollywood NAACP's Tenth Annual Image Awards Show and dinner has been set for Sunday, April 24, at the Century Plaza Hotel, it was announced today by Bill Lane, Chairman of this year's event.

In making the announcement Lane stated: "In celebration of our 10th anniversary, we expect this year's show to be the most spectacular in the history of the Image Awards.

"We have added new categories for minorities in commercials and in sports on television, which provides a much broader base for 'images' in entertainment".

Image Awards are presented annually to those individuals in the motion picture, television and recording industries who have made outstanding contributions to the enhancement of minority 'Images' before and behind the scene.
